The Council in a vase

As part of an ambitious project, the Council of the European Union will be housed in a few years' time in a brand new building with a surprising architectural style. From the Rue de la Loi, the building will take on the appearance of a huge cube with a patchwork of wooden frames and crystalline glass on its facade. Through this large volume, it will be possible to make out a kind of giant amphora housing the conference rooms. In opaque glass, lit during the night, it will look like a lantern placed in a box. It also symbolises transparency...
